Hidden California Honeymoon Destinations

And let the romance begin

APR 13, 2015

Once the vows are said, it's time to begin your new life together. Even if you've been living together for years, the amazing moment when you realize you're truly married is a magical time in your lives. There's no better way to further bond your love than at a truly dream honeymoon destination. And California offers a range of options, from beachside romance to a visit to wine country or the desert.

Read on and you'll find exactly the place to thrill both you and your sweetheart with this useful guide of our editor's picks of the top hidden honeymoon destinations in the Golden State.

Santa Rosa

Is there anything more romantic than cozying up with your partner in an elegant inn, surrounded by acres of flourishing vines, drinking world-class wines over some of the best farm-fresh food in the country?

Get a room at the Vintners Inn, a boutique hotel hidden behind a lush enclave of Santa Rosa, Calif.; this hotel features all king beds, feather bedding, huge jet bath tubs, and stunning culinary gardens that are used in the legendary John Ash & Co. restaurant.

Spend the day on Santa Rosa's famous cycling routes, which might lead you to a winery or award-winning brewery and then have dinner in a chic new restaurant in the charming town of Healdsburg. It's the perfect destination for wine lovers who want to escape the bustling crowds of Napa.
