

Vintners Inn Unveils $1 Million 'Green' Renovation

The Vintners Inn, a 44-room boutique hotel on a 98-acre property in Sonoma County's Russian River Valley, recently completed a year-long, $1 million renovation with an emphasis on comfort, style, and going "green."

Rhonda Carano, who owns the inn with her husband, Don, worked with a team of interior designers from MBA Architecture + Interior Design to create an elegant, Italian-inspired aesthetic. While there is a definite nod to the old-world charm and romance of Italy, the primary motivation behind the renovation was a commitment to a 'green' philosophy.

A brand new lobby and other upgrades are blended with energy-efficient lighting and electric vehicle charging stations. The atriums are refinished with Venetian plaster. Wood-burning fireplaces are now eco-friendly electric fireplaces. And the guest rooms offer new drapery, bedding, furniture, lighting, and artwork.
